Number of Varieties Will Surpass Madison Square Garden Exhibit of 1920.

In the point of the number of varieties the Washington Poultry Show, which is to open November 22 and continues for five days at the Coliseum, Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, will surpass the Madison Square Garden show of last year.

The entry list, which is closed, contains the names of leading professional as well as amateur poultry breeders from all parts of the country. A number of new species of fowls will be shown. Among the most prominent will be the Buttercup, which will be shown by C. Sydney Cook, of Boston, president of the Buttercup Club. Between sixty and seventy-five of these birds will be shown.

In the Asiatic class, H. C. Wood, of Huntington, L. I., two celebrated breeders, will be represented with Light Brahmas. An English fowl will be shown by Rees Evans, who is bringing his exhibit from Ardmore, Okla.

F. H. Stillwagon, of Allentown, Pa., and A. Albright, Jr., of Newark, N. J., millionaires who have taken up the breeding of high-class poultry as a hobby, will display Rhode Island Reds. There will be about 3,000 exhibits, representing about 200 exhibitors.

LOVERS CONFESS PLOT SO THEY COULD MARRY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Nov. 14.—An amazing confession made by Lella Lampan, sixteen-year-old high school girl to County Attorney H. K. Lockwood, resulted in the release of Gilbert Cropp, seventeen, who was in jail on a statutory charge.

The children had conspired to tell Miss Lampan's mother a story of seduction, with the hope that she should order them to be married. The boy had consented to the plan, but when the jail doors closed on him he suffered a change of heart, denied his guilt and caused the county attorney to summon the girl.

She broke down and confessed.

BIG BOOM DUE IN YANK TRADE WITH GERMANY

Resumption of Diplomatic Relations to Be Signal for Increase in Commerce.

By W. H. ATKINS,
International News Service.

A boom in American trade with Germany will follow resumption of diplomatic relations. A proclamation of peace with Germany, soon expected, as a result of treaty ratifications, will open an outlet for American goods.

Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of cotton and other products will move to German destinations. Cotton will figure chiefly in American exports.

America now has a heavy favorable United States thus far this year has shipped Germany about five times as much as was imported. The Government's latest totals today showed that there has been an excess of exports amounting to $241,000,000.

There is a chance for Germany to shift that trade balance by heavier exports to the United States. She will be able to do this if she gets the raw materials to keep her factories running at something like normal speed. In most German plants operations have been on a part-time basis, because of the lack of raw materials.

Under the protective measures now being considered, it is not probable German "dumping" of cheaply priced products will disturb American producers. There is ample field in the United States, experts figure, for products which do not enter sharply into competition with American-made goods.

German trade leaders now are in the United States re-establishing trade and financial connections, broken by the war. Karl Von Bergmann, director of the Deutsche Bank, is a prime mover in some projects of far-reaching importance.

Bergmann, at a recent conference with Secretary of Commerce Hoover, obtained valuable data that will assist both American and German business men in future trade plans.

RATTLESNAKE IN TRAP BITES SMALL GIRL

CENTREVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 14.—Miss Eva Lee Redden, eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Redden, had a narrow escape from being bitten by a vicious rattlesnake.

The child was sent to investigate the next morning and a four-foot rattler with eleven rattles was caught by the rattles at the end of the tail and in striking at the girl barely missed her arm, which she threw out to ward off the blow.

$1,015 LIFE SAVINGS BOOTY OF BURGLAR

Jesse Rye, Aged District Building Laborer, Had Intended to Bank Money Today.

GET BIG LOT OF CLOTHES

Other Thieves Pay Visit to Department and Other Stores—One Takes Veteran's Overcoat.

After being employed at the District Building twenty years, as a laborer, Jesse Rye, 60 years old, had saved $1,015. He kept it at his little frame cottage at 648 Elm street northwest. Last night he told Detective Thomas Sweeney of police headquarters, who had been summoned to the cottage, that a robber had broken into his home during his absence and robbed a trunk on the second floor of his life's savings—the $1,015 all in cash.

The aged man showed the detective a broken window pane, and explained that the thief had entered that way. Rye said the money which he had strived to save was to be presented to charity at the time of his death. He told the detective further that he had intended to take the money to a bank today and deposit it for safe keeping.

To Start All Over Again.

"I suppose that I will have to start all over again," Rye said, "but it takes a long time, and lots of sacrifice to save the amount that I have just been robbed of."

"However," Rye added, "I can help John Bernard, a true friend of mine who had his trunk robbed last night, if he can help me."
